The Toldos Advantage Rabbi Pinchas Winston

There is no free will in the World-to-Come. Actually, that'll end with the beginning of Yemos HaMoshiach, and with it, all earning power to move higher in the World-to-Come. It's game over, and what you get will be what you earned throughout all of your incarnations.

It ends even earlier for someone who dies before the Messianic Era and does not reincarnate. And the way that many people use free will nowadays, they don't earn much even while they're here in the world.

There is a workaround, though. There is a way to earn merit for the World-to-Come even after death, even after Yemos HaMoshiach has arrived, even while already in the World-to-Come. It's called children, and their children, and their children's children, etc. The toldos we give birth to speak up on our behalf, or against us, depending upon the job we did to raise them.

True, as Rashi explained back in Parashas Noach, the main toldos of a person are their good deeds. And good deeds can work in our favor even generations later because of all the impact they had. But those good deeds would have to have been mighty impactful to match the merit that children can bring their parents day after day.

And for those who want children but have been unsuccessful for reasons beyond their control, there is something important to know. Only G-d knows why He gives children to some and not to others. But in this, G-d takes into account what a person's children might have been like had they been born to such people, and gives them the merit as if they had been. It all works out, even if we can't figure out how.

What about if a child does not walk in G-d's ways, like Eisav in this week's parsha? If the parents did their part to help the child go the "right" way, they won't be affected by the outcome of such a child. Everyone has a unique nature, and G-d has His plans for history.

Kolenu Divrei Torah are dedicated in loving memory of our dear friend Joey Rhein - Chaim Yosef ben Ahron Aryeh a"h
